Chapter 13: Observations of Remedy Reactions and Posology Considerations

- Observation 1 Clear initial aggravation of the main physical complaint(s), the mental/ emotional symptoms and the energy level— followed by a quick, longlasting recovery
- Observation 2 The patient feels much better in every aspect, but there is little or no aggravation
- Observation 3 After an initial aggravation, the patient feels much better in every aspect, but some symptoms remain
- Observation 4 After an initial aggravation there is local and general amelioration, but new symptoms appear belonging to the remedy given
- Observation 5 The physical symptoms subside after an initial aggravation, but there has been no reaction on the mental– emotional plane or the energy level
- Observation 6 No initial aggravation: the patient reports being better but is not really well
- Observation 7 The patient's main complaint has ameliorated without aggravation, but a new problem now emerges
- Observation 8 The patient's original complaint is somewhat better, but new symptoms dominate the case, completing the remedy pattern

- Observation 9 Short aggravation followed by local and general amelioration, then partial relapse after one month
- Observation 10 Actual relapse one month after a positive reaction
- Observation 11 Temporary amelioration without initial aggravation, then a full relapse after one month
- Observation 12 Amelioration in certain areas without aggravation, but after some weeks the patient is worse than before (with or without a change of symptoms)
- Observation 13 No change in the case
- Observation 14 A reserved or shy patient who reports that nothing has changed
- Observation 15 Improvement of some minor physical symptom without any further changes in a reserved or intellectual patient
- Observation 16 Improvement of a minor physical symptom without any other changes in an extroverted patient
- Observation 17 The patient reports a deterioration, but there may have been some improvement in the past few days
- Observation 18 Steady aggravation of all symptoms
- Observation 19 Clear, long-lasting aggravation, followed by improvement for four to five days, then by continued deterioration
- Observation 20 The patient has been feeling worse for an entire month
- Observation 21 Over the course of the month, the chief complaint has become more severe, while other symptoms have improved
- Observation 22 The mental–emotional plane deteriorates, while the energy level and physical complaints are improved after an aggravation
