Preface

During the course of my almost thirty years of experience in the field of homoeopathic medical treatment, I came across the ailments and sufferings of the common man, which deeply moved and made me concerned. It was noticed that despite having spent large amounts of money, the patients could not get satisfactory treatment by other systems of medicine, which made them desperate and made me more concerned about them.

My friends and acquaintances also brought to me the patients of chronic diseases who were declared incurable by other systems of medicine. But thanks to Dr Samuel Hahnemann and his system of homoeopathic treatment, I could cure the chronic disease of patients. Such patients got satisfaction and developed faith in the homoeopathic medicine system. They also enquired from me time and again whether, apart from their own ailments, other ailments could also be cured by homoeopathy.

I have, all through my life as a medical practitioner, tried to provide guidance and treatment to whosoever came to me with ailment and suffering. Being deeply moved by the immense suffering and ailment of the common man, I was motivated to write this book in such a simple and easy to understand language that the common man may be able to successfully treat his ailment by consulting the book.

This book is an outcome of my feelings and experience and has sole objective of easy curing of the sick cheaply. This book can also be useful for the homoeopathic practitioners as a reference book.

To make this book more valuable, I have utilized the vast available homoeopathic literature and have included the experiences, study and researches of reputed homoeopathic experts.

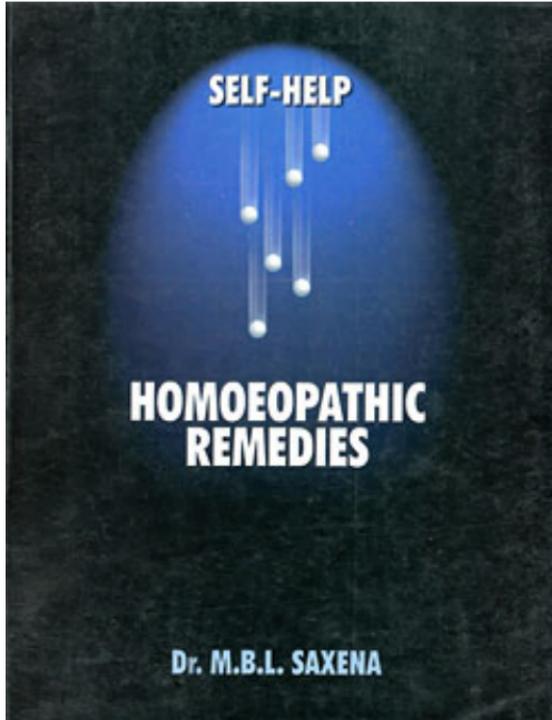

Since the common man understands the ailments by the nature of the disease, so in this book also the names of diseases have been given as in other homoeopathic books. These have been arranged alphabetically and the suggested remedies are based purely on the characteristics and peculiar symptoms, not ignoring the homoeopathic principles. The appropriate potency of the remedies have also been suggested. In some specific cases, the remedy for the particular ailment has been given; but in other cases, the remedy or the potency of the medicines have to be changed on the basis of the history of the concerned patient, i.e. the age, constitution, temperament, habits and environment, to ensure the cure.

A common notion among the people that homoeopathic medicines can be taken without any fear of reaction whatsoever appears to be untenable as per my experience. It is hence suggested that the use of homoeopathic medicine be repeated only if the symptoms of the ailment persist, otherwise not, else the same symptoms may recur.

I pray to the almighty to cure all those who read and consult this book.

To err is human, hence suggestions if any by the learned readers will be gratefully acknowledged.
